Sissy

02/10/09 - 06/20/25

My precious baby, "Sissy", fell asleep in my arms June 20, 2025.

Always the faithful one, meek and eager to please; her loving spirit is already mournfully missed. Her favorite pastime was napping on the top of knoll in the yard, ever watchful, protecting her family as Border Collies do.

Following/guarding Pops as he did yard work was her self-given assignment which she never failed to do.

Her sweet kisses were full of love and given without hesitation. How do you sum up nearly 17 years and do it justice? You don't...words are inadequate. A rescue at age 1 and a life fully and cheerfully lived has ended, and our hearts are shattered. You will be loved Sissy...until we meet again.

Rest In Peace Sissy

“ I still miss you sweet love. Everywhere I look i see you. Smelling your fur, kissing you and holding you, if I could just do that..... Your little precious spirit will be with me as long as I live. Please be waiting for me when I arrive in heaven one day; that would be the greatest reward I could ever ask.

“ We found Sissy after we lost our sweet Fancy. How fortunate we were to have Sissy for well over a decade. My fondest and earliest memory of Sissy was in Pop’s backyard. I was only a kid, singing off-tune to Sissy as she ran around the hill of the backyard. As she circled me and occasionally came up to me for kisses, I sang, “Photographer, photographer, come and take your photograph.” On repeat as I watched her, so full of life.

When Sissy fell ill, only then did I add more to the song, “Photographer, Photographer, come and take your photograph of Sissy and me. Let us keep this sweet memory.” I sang to her days before she moved on.

I miss your sweet kisses, beautiful girl. Rest easy, Sissy.

“ Dear Sissy....such a loving, gentle girl, whom i only knew for several years, but grew to dearly love you. i will never forget those last few weeks with you, at our house, as we cared for you, tried all that we could to keep you with us, but your time to go came....you had given all the service, memories and love you could. And now, sweet girl, you are over the Rainbow Bridge, reunited with Bernie, running the hills, chasing deer, under the tree resting, and gazing at the stars in Heaven. rest in peace, dear love.

“ Oh, how i loved you my sweet girl. Everywhere I look...memories of my baby. You shouldn't be on a page with your picture, you should be in my arms. If I could hold you, smell your fur, get those kisses and snuggle. You have made an unfillable hole in my heart. Coming into our lives as a rescue asking nothing yet giving me everything. I will love you forever sweetest girl. Rest easy and know I love you!
